The report closed by saying that the ent ydrographic charts issued by the Busau were beyond the criticism of the lethods of sea navigation.
Then Lieutenant-Commander John E. Then Lieutenant-Commander John E. Pilisbury, who is stationed at the Charlestown Navy-Yard, was called as the first witness of the day. Commander Pilisbury said he had been nearly thirty-four years in the service, and had spent five years as Commander of the Blake taking surveys. He had, he said, made fifty anchorages in and about the Caribbean Sea for the purpose of observing the currents. His observations had extended 230 fathoms deep.

After describing the set of the main current after it enters through the pas-ages between the Windward Islands, the witness followed its course through its many windings until it flows between Jamaica and Honduras. The surface currents, according to Commander Phis-bury, varied both in force and direction nury, varied both in force and direction at different times. The best chart of the currents, he said, was the pilot chart, issued since December lust. The whole system of currents was changed in December, according to the witness, when it was found the former charts were not correct.

YACHT NATALIE WATCHED.

off Fortune ! land. A gentleman who are red in this city on the steamer Alene, from Kingston, says that on Feb. 28 last the yacht Natalle, was still anchored of February Natalle, was 181and, and that a Haytian gunboat was in close croximity.

18 is his opinion that the gunboat was there for the purpose of watching the rock, which was thought to be there in the interest of Haytian revolutionists. No attempt had been minds by the gunboat to selze or engage the yacht in action, from the fact that it was unchored in waters of the British Bahamas, and within a distance of three miles of Fortune Island
